SWAT THE FLY.
There was a maid in our town,
And she was wondrous wise;
She jumped into the dining room
And swatted all the flies.

And when the dining room was cleaned
Of flies, she got to litchin'
To swat some more, and so she killed
All that were in the kitchen.

And when she'd cleaned the kitchen up
She felt quite acrobatic,
And with a mop she went atop
To swat 'em in the attic.

And when she had the attic clear,
No one did have to tell 'er
That she could finish up the job
And swat 'em in the cellar.

And while she swatted down below
Those flies she raised the dance.
They filled the rooms she'd left, and so
She sighed, "Oo, what's the use?"

At last she had a bright idea,
A fly-preventing plan;
She got a new, tight-fitting lid
To grace the garbage can.

WASHINGTON, July 17th.—Senator O'Gorman of New York, charged in the Senate today that railroad influence was behind Great Britain's protest against the Panama Canal bill and he joined with Lodge in declaring that the United States possessed full rights under the British treaty to give free passage to ships of American register.

A current report is in circulation here this morning of a river tragedy, in which an eight-year-old girl is the victim.

Yesterday two men, accompanied by an eight-year-old girl, hailing from Eagle Creek on the Ohio side, between Maysville and Ripley, said to reside on a shanty boat, spent the day here, the men putting in the time in drinking.

It is related that in making the homeward trip in a skiff that the two men became engaged in a fight and that the young girl was either thrown or knocked out of the frail craft and was drowned.

It is said that the two men were arrested and are now in Jail at Ripley. The names of the parties could not be ascertained.

FRANKFORT, Ky., July 17th.—In a great pitcher's battle today French had the best of Wellman and Maysville was defeated by the score of 2 to 1 by Frankfort. Wellman's wildness and the timely hitting of Dunica gave the game to Frankfort. Nicholson's base running was also a feature.

The Rivermen did not score until the eighth inning. Wellman started with a two-base hit to right, went to third on Langenham's out to Giddo and scored on Woodruff's drive through French. Woodruff died trying to steal.

The score:

W. H. Taft. J. S. Sherman.

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT,
WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
JAMES S. SHERMAN.

It is becoming more and more apparent that many of even most radical Republican progressives will refuse to support Theodore Roosevelt.

Among the influences which are operating in this direction none is more potent than recognition of the utter selfishness with which Colonel Roosevelt managed the progressive campaign at the Chicago convention.

Public realization of that selfishness grows rather than diminishes as the convention recedes. Discussion of it gathers volume and importance day by day.

The current member of La Follette's weekly contains a contribution to that discussion in which the Senator forcibly contrasts the success of Bryan at Baltimore with the failure of Roosevelt at Chicago.

After stating that Bryan at Baltimore, "forgoing all chances of his own nomination," braved Tammany and the trusts to the point of rescuing the convention from their domination, while Roosevelt at Chicago, "backed by money derived from stock-watering operations of the steel trust and the harvester trust, organizing what are now confessed to have been fake contests as to nearly 200 delegates in order to control the Republican convention and secure his own nomination, refusing to aid in making a progressive platform, bound to have the nomination or destroy the Republican party" was a most striking example of misdirected power and unworthy ambition.

The Senator goes on to show that Roosevelt did not have enough votes to nominate himself, on any honest basis and the public knows this to be true when it remembers that 344 Roosevelt delegates refused to answer to their names when the roll call was taken on the first and only ballot on the presidential nomination, while 107 of his delegates disobeyed their leader's instructions and voted for him.

When the credentials committee had progressed somewhat with the work of passing on contest cases, the Roosevelt leaders offered to simplify and hasten the proceedings by reducing their claims so that but 42 seats would be in question. Now adding the 48 to 451 would have given Roosevelt a total of 499. And as he needed 540 to nominate the La Follette figures are shown to be correct.

But the Senator says that if Roosevelt had been as unselfish as Colonel Bryan was a week later he could have nominated Hadley at the Chicago convention.

"But Roosevelt would not consider Hadley," says La Follette. "He would have no one else. At the first suggestion of Hadley he ordered the third party maneuvers he lose his followers."

graph in LaFollette's editorial ought to cause Republicans to rally faithfully around the Taft banner. It shows how far Colonel Roosevelt is from being entitled to Republican votes:

"That this is the true psychology of the Roosevelt proceedings becomes perfectly plain. He was there to force his own nomination or smash the convention. He was not there to preserve the integrity of the Republican party and make it an instrument for the promotion of progressive principles and the restoration of government to the people. Otherwise he would have directed his floor managers to contest every inch of the ground for a progressive platform before the committee on Resolutions and in the open convention.

"But Mr. Roosevelt was not governed by a suggestion of that spirit of high patriotic and unselfish purpose of which Bryan furnished such a magnificent example one week later in the Democratic convention at Baltimore. Instead he filled the public ear with sound and fury. He ruthlessly sacrificed everything to the one idea of his being the one candidate. He gagged his followers in the convention without putting on record any facts upon which the public could base a definite intelligent judgment regarding the validity of Taft's nomination. He submitted no suggestion as to a platform of progressive principles. He clamored loudly for purging the convention roll of tainted delegates without purging his own candidacy of his tainted contests and its tainted trust support. He offered no reason for a third party excepting his own overmastering craving for a third term."

A better companion with Mr. Roosevelt than a bull moose would be a bull mouse.

Kentucky is justly proud of Mr. James—Cynthiana Democrat.

Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha!

We wonder if President Taft really thinks he can be elected?—Cynthiana Democrat.

He thought he would be nominated?

I lost the nomination solely through the vile and malicious slanders of Col. William Jennings Bryan of Nebraska.—Champ Clark.

With a view to making farmers' daughters more content to remain at home, schools of housewifery have been established by the government of the Netherlands in various parts of the country. Other branches will eventually be added to them.

California, Connecticut, Illinois, New York, Michigan and Wisconsin have made laws requiring physicians to make reports on occupational diseases. The diseases specified are anthrax, caisson disease of the "bends" and lead, phosphorous, arsenic and mercury poisoning.

THE POINTED QUESTION

"The late Marion Crawford," said a New York editor, "was a good if not a brilliant speaker. He imputed his success to a little Sorrento girl."

"In Sorrento once he rose to address a children's school."

"Children," he began, 'what shall I talk to you about?'

"And this from a little girl from a rear bench very wisely: 'What do you know?'

Under Difficulties

"This is something like it," said Young Burgess with satisfaction. "It sure is!" agreed Miss Clancy. She shrugged her shoulders as she glanced back home window. Inside the parlor the gas glared hotly, lighting up the hair wreath above the mantel and glittering on the gaudy vases beneath.

"Now, that it's got warm enough to sit outdoors," pursued young Burgess, stretching his long legs over three steps below him, "we can shake the parlor in there! Gee, but it was fierce last winter, never to get a word with you without a lot of old women butting in with, 'Excuse me, but I am looking for my crochet work! Lovely evening, isn't it, Mr. Burgess?' or glaring at us for being there at all! Or having callers of their own! Nice, chatty conversations we could carry on that way, couldn't we? I—"

"Oh," said a voice behind them as the screen door creaked, "is some one out here? Oh, it's you, Miss Clancy—and Mr. Burgess, of course! Ahem—not that I meant anything, at all! I suppose I've interrupted your conversation, but it was so hot in there—I can go right in—"

"Don't think of it, Mrs. Miner," said Miss Clancy, airily, rising. "You can have the steps and welcome. We are just going for a walk anyhow. Come on, Jimmy!"

"Wouldn't that frost you!" exclaimed young Burgess after they had proceeded a safe distance. "Just wanted to find out what we were talking about! Catch her sitting out there by herself! We'll circle the block and see!"

When they got near enough again to see the steps young Burgess gave a low gurgle of triumph. The steps were empty.

"Come on," he said. "Let's go get some ice cream. Just as sure as we go back there somebody else'll come out!"

In a sympathetic sort of disgust they sought the brilliantly lighted candy store on the corner and found a vacant table.

"Straw'ree for me," said Miss Clancy. "I just wonder, Jimmy, that you haven't got tired before this and quit me. It's fierce, going to see a girl that hasn't a parlor of her own to entertain company in! We've seen been chased around enough by them other boarders!"

"Well, were's away from 'em right now," said young Burgess. "Let's make the most of it. I—"

"Why, the ideal!" broke in a high-pitched voice at the next table. "If it isn't Miss Clancy! Oh—how do you do, Mr. Burgess!" There was an arch infection to the greeting that the speaker appreciated the sentimental situation.

"How-do, Miss Binks?" said Miss Clancy stonily. Miss Binks was forty, dressed like twenty and fondly thought she looked like sixteen. She made eyes at young Burgess, who turned purple. Then she arose with her plate of ice cream and fluttered into the vacant chair at their table. "It's so lonesome by myself," she purred apologetically. "I was so thirsty I just had to come out after something cold, but I shrink from going out in the evening unescorted. It's more sociable this way, don't you think?"

"Oh, my, yes!" agreed Miss Clancy with sarcasm that was totally lost. "Sorry we're just through. We've got an engagement to meet some friends!"

"Let me slip back and stick some cold poison in her ice cream," growled young Burgess throatily after they had escaped. "She's the limit! Another second and she'd have asked to go walking with us! Let's go down to the little park. It's only a few blocks away!"

He tucked Miss Clancy's hand in the crook of his arm and they walked on with regained cheerfulness. It was not so bad to be out in the dusk with the faint echoes of a street piano in the air and automobiles whirling by. Presently their feet crunched the gravel of the walk that ran around the little park and they strolled on till they found a bench that was unoccupied. A lilac bush in bloom waved above them.

"Gee!" breathed young Burgess with a vast exhaling of breath signifying peace of mind at last. He laid one hand over Miss Clancy's and she did not reprove him. Presently he turned his head toward her, but the words on his lips died in thin air. A ponderous footed person engulfed in alcoholic aura away toward their bench and dropped massively on the other end and leered at them. "Buful night?" he asked, ap pealingly.

Young Burgess and Miss Clancy did not speak till they were a block away. Then they halted and young Burgess spoke. "See here," he said, in the desperate tones of a man at bay, "I wasn't going to say anything till I got a boost in my pay, but I'm likely to blow up and remove a few people from the landscape if this goes on much longer! If you can scrape along for a while on what I'm getting I'll speak for a flat tomorrow! Our own parlor—think of it! And our own porch! Will you?"

Miss Clancy wept openly. "Will I?" she repeated. "Why, it would just be heaven!"—Chicago Daily News.

BURLEY SOCIETY HAS CLOSED OUT 1909 HOLDINGS

Eight Cents a Pound and Up Paid for 102,000,000 Pounds and Distribution of Funds Will Take Place in a Few Weeks

Lexington Leader.

Announcement was made here Tuesday by the Executive Board of the Burley Tobacco Society that all of the pooled tobacco of the 1909 holdings of the Society, aggregating approximately 102,000,000 pounds, had been sold at prices ranging from 8 cents a pound and up.

The bulk of this tobacco was sold on the Lexington, Louisville and Cincinnati markets. The final report that all of the pooled tobacco had been closed out was made by Committee-man Fred Stacey, who had supervision of the sales on the Cincinnati market, and was submitted to the Board Tuesday.

It will take several weeks to make a final settlement with all of the purchasers, who include practically all of the tobacco manufacturers of the country, including the American Tobacco Company, which got a large share of the tobacco.

As soon as this settlement is made it is announced that a final distribution of funds will be made to the growers who had tobacco in the pool.

The board also accepted the plans of the Alyn Engineering Company of Cincinnati and New York for the construction of the mammoth loose leaf warehouse that the Burley Tobacco Company will erect in Lexington on South Broadway, and which will be 107 by 608 feet, and be ready for occupancy within the next year.

Scottville, Mich.—"I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done me. I live on a farm and have worked very hard. I am forty-five years old, and am the mother of thirteen children. Many people think it strange that I am not broken down with hard work and the care of my family, but I tell them of my good friend, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and that there will be no backache and bearing down pains for them if they will take it as I have. I am scarcely ever without it in the house.

"I will say also that I think there is no better medicine to be found for young girls. My eldest daughter has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for painful periods and irregularity, and it has helped her.

Large Attendance Expected at Reunion at Middlesboro

That the annual meeting of the Kentucky Elks' Association in Middlesboro next month will be the biggest in the history of the organization is the prediction of Edward J. Duncan of Hopkinsville, the President.

Great preparations for the event are being made by the Magic City Lodge under the direction of Exalted Ruler Robert J. Johnson and Senator Joseph Bosworth, chairman of the Entertainment Committee.

Six hundred Elks have signified their intention to attend the reunion, and many of them will be accompanied by women, for whose pleasure special plans are announced.

One of the prettiest entertainments of the season took place Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harris on East Fifth street given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Williams of Frankfort, whose marriage took place at Cincinnati June 15th. The floral decorations in the house were beautiful. Miss Anna Williams presided at the punch bowl. The guests were highly entertained with music and toasts; after which was the grand march, led by the hostess, to the dining-room where the table, laden with its plenty and charming in its arrangements of sweet peas and maiden hair ferns with toasts at each guest's plate. Mrs. Williams is the charming and talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harris and Mr. Williams is one of Frankfort's coming young men. The guests included besides the two guests of honor, many of our best citizens.

CONFIDENTLY RECOMMEND DOAN'S
KIDNEY PILLS

It is testimony like the following that has placed Doan's Kidney Pills so far above competitors. When people right here at home raise their voices in praise there is no room left for doubt. Read the public statement of a Maysville citizen:

Mrs. Dora Mefford, Maysville, Ky., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills did me a lot of good and I am glad to tell about it. I had been feeling poorly for some time, before I knew that my kidneys were at fault. I was nervous and dizzy and my back and head ached. I rested poorly and mornings I was all tired out. I read in a local paper how a neighbor had been cured of kidney trouble by Doan's Kidney Pills. I used them, and before long I was entirely better. I was able to sleep well and they improved my health."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

OUR WEEKLY SPORT LETTER

BY C. H. ZUBER.

CINCINNATI, O., July 18th, 1912.

During the past week the New York Giants have given the Chicago Cubs some reason to believe that the National League pennant is not clinched for the Gothamites by a great deal, this belief being based on the fact that the New Yorkers have lost a large majority of their games on the Western trip, while the Chicagoans have been particularly effective against the Eastern teams that have faced them so far. Perhaps the greatest surprise handed McGraw's men was the series of three defeats in four games played at St. Louis. After their disastrous visit to Chicago it was expected that the champs would clean up at St. Louis. Instead they were badly worsted by the Cardinals. They still have games with Pittsburgh and Cincinnati before they return to their own apple orchard, and the dope would indicate that these teams should make as good a showing against them as did Chicago and St. Louis. The series between the Reds and the Giants begins next Sunday, when Rube Marquard, the wonder of 1912, will probably be pitted against Rube Benton.

Marquard, by the way, now holds two 1912 pitching records. His first was to win 19 games in succession, coming within one of equalling the best authenticated big league record. His next was to lose two in the same day, this feat occurring over in St. Louis, where he finished one game and started in the second game of a double header. In the first game he was sent in to pitch after the game had gone to a tie and the original pitcher had been taken out to allow a substitute batter to bat for him. Marquard went in, was scored against, and received credit for the defeat. In the second game the Reds showed but little stuff, with the result that the Cardinals won handily. Now that the spell which Marquard exercised over the other teams seems to have been broken, it is reasonable to suppose that the Giants will not be as exclusive from now on as they have been during the past six weeks.

Judging by the several limited try-outs which he has received, Pitcher Davis, secured by the Reds from Knoxville, stands a perfectly good chance of sticking with the big show. He seems to have a lot of speed, good curves and fine control. He also seems possessed of the good old nerve, a quality highly essential to success. It is expected that he will be started in a game against Boston during the next few days, so that a better line may be secured on his ability. Pitcher Hirsch, who was purchased from the Cotton States League, reported with a lame arm and was sent home to recuperate. He will begin drawing salary when he can earn it. It is expected that other twirlers will be corralled during the next week or so. Scout Peltz and Tannehill have reported on several good men for whom negotiations have been opened.

The overwhelming success of the entrants in the Olympiad at Stockholm, while not unexpected, was, nevertheless, most gratifying. Not only did the United States score the greatest number of points of any of the nations in the strictly track and field events, but it also led in the number of points scored in the general competitions, which included marksmanship and other contests not strictly athletic. The total number of points scored by Uncle Sam's representatives was 128, Sweden being second with 104 and Great Britain third with 66. In the track and field events the United States led with 85, Finland being second with 27 and Sweden third with 24. This Olympiad, like those of previous years, showed clearly the superior method of training of the Americans and their greater skill and endurance.

Speaking as an expert on pugilism, Jim Corbett, once world's champion heavyweight, declares that Jack Johnson, the present holder of the title, is a false alarm. Corbett believes that any of the former holders of the title, himself, Fitzsimmons or Jeffries, when the fight was right, would have found Johnson easy money. He argues that Flynn was not to be considered at all as a fighter; that Jeffries was only a shell when he met the colored man, and that Johnson has persistently avoided meeting either Sam Langford or Joe Jeannette, whom he considers really high-class heavies, both being colored men. Meanwhile Johnson is coining money in his new Chicago cafe on the strength of the advertising he received through his latest victory.

There are no less than eight claimants to the middleweight championship title, each with sufficient dope to clinch his claim, if the other

The elimination will begin in Paris the latter part of July, when the rejuvenated Billy Papke will meet George Carpentier, the French champion, in a 20-round bout. The victor of the battle will sign up from Frank Kraus, after which the other claimants, Eddie McGorty, Jack Dillon, Bob Moha, Leo Houck and Buck Crouse, will have their feelings. Neck Broken; Still Lives

The condition of James Crockett, the young man who broke his neck while in bathing in Hinkerton creek last week remains unchanged. Physicians state that he has absolutely no chance to live, but the fact that he has remained alive ten days with a broken neck and totally paralyzed is in itself a source of wonder.

FOUR BILLION

Republican Government Shows
Record-Breaking Commerce
Growth

Quarter of Billion Increase in Imports and Exports

Foreign commerce of the United States for the fiscal year 1912 was greater than ever before, new high records being established for both imports and exports.

The value of merchandise entering free of duty also reached an unprecedented total.

The year's trade figures, made public by the Commerce and Labor Department's bureau of statistics show the imports $1,653,426,174 and the exports $2,204,222,088 in value.

Imports exceeded the former high record, that of 1910, by about $100,000,000, while exports exceeded the 1911 record by nearly $155,000,000.

These totals added to the value of the trade of the United States with Porto Rico and Hawaii would make a grand total of about $4,000,000,000.

Imports entering free of duty were valued at $881,743,144, exceeding by $105,000,000 the former high record of free imports, that of 1911.

Non-dutiable merchandise formed 53.32 per cent. of the total imports, the percentage being larger than ever before, except during the operations of the McKinley tariff law, when sugar was imported free.

SPEED PROGRAM

RUNNING RACES AND HARNESS
RACES TO BE GIVEN ON EACH DAY.

Cup Races to be Given Each Day by the Gentlemen's Driving Club at Blue Grass Fair.

An excellent speed program has been arranged for the Blue Grass Fair at Lexington, week of August 12th to 17th.

On each of the six days there will be running races and harness racing on every day but Saturday. The two-year-old stake to be contested during the week, closed with 33 entries including nearly all of the best in training in Kentucky. This race has always been one of the best races of the year for two-year-olds and this should prove no exception to the rule.

In addition there will be a 2:16 trot, a 2:20 pace, 3-year-old trot and 2:22 trot. There will be no deduction from winners except in the stake, the entries to which closed May 10th.

Other features will be added and announced later.

THE PARKER SHOWS

Will Present Several Headline Attractions at Blue Grass Fair.

It is always customary for the larger tented enterprises to offer one big feature attraction, sparing neither time or expense to make it the crown jewel of the show. The "Parker Shows," Mr. C. W. Parker, founder and owner of the Parker Amusement Company, who remains at his big factories at Leavenworth, Kan., and directs his various companies from the home office, conceived the idea that a big European novelty would be the proper attraction for his largest company, The Greater Parker Shows. With this idea in view Miss Essie Fay and her beautiful full blooded Arabian were booked for this season's tour of America.

Miss Fay, who was an English woman by birth, was touring Arabia with her father, who at that time was a member of the English Parliament. When a guest of the Prince of Morocco at his palace in Tripoli, the Prince was pleased with Miss Fay and presented her with an Arabian yearling. The young lady shipped the horse to her father's stable. While roving the green with her new pet, she formed an attachment to the colt, and he the same to her, and in his grace and beauty, she thought she saw something promising. With his increasing brains and grace, and the careful training of his mistress, "Arabia" was quick to win acclaims of royalty and nobility in the greatest collections of Europe.

At London, Paris, Berlin, Naples, Madrid, Moscow, Vienna and St. Petersburg "Arabia," under the directions of Miss Fay, has astonished thousands who have witnessed "Arabia" add and subtract, answer questions, "yes" or "no" by the nod of her head, use the telephone, and do other astonishing feats, displaying an animal intelligence almost unbelievable of any dumb brute. "Arabia" goes to a big brass bed, takes off his nightcap, undresses, turns down the covers, arranges the pillows, gets into bed, covers himself up again and apparently goes to sleep. Finishing his exhibition with a startling and exciting fire scene. Crushing down his stable door, he dashes across the lawn to the burning building of his mistress, he reappears leaping through the window with an infant child in his mouth and his mistress across his shoulders. "Arabia" the "fire-fighting" horse and "Arabia" the "good-night" horse will appear in Lexington at the Blue Grass Fair August 7-12.

HALF FARE RATES TO FAIR

Do not fail to visit the Blue Grass Fair at Lexington the week of August 12th to 17th. One fare rates will prevail on all railroads in Kentucky. Every afternoon and evening beginning Sunday, August 11th, there will be magnificent band concerts by Frederick Neil Innes' Orchestra Band, accompanied by Beatrice Van Loon, one of America's younger sopranos, who is recognized as one of the most charming and delightful soloists before the public to-day.

WOMAN'S DEPARTMENT.

The Woman's Department of the Blue Grass Fair, to be held at Lexington, August 12 to 17th, will be more important and extensive this year than ever before. The premium list has been revised, and classes offered cover almost every kind of woman's work and table luxuries. The third floor of the Art Hall is given entirely to this department, and is usually one of the most attractive exhibits of the Big Fair.

This year the second floor will be utilized by the "Made in Lexington Club," and it is needless to say will be made as attractive as possible, and will be an exposition of wares manufactured in Lexington.

On the lower floor the management has arranged with the Canadian Government Exhibit to bring their display of wheat, grain and other agricultural products. This should attract the attention of every farmer in the state, as it is the same display made at big state fairs and expositions.

Historic Blackguards

George Monk, the Man Who Sold a Throne

THIS is the story of a "National Hero," who climbed to fame by the ladder of blackguardism. He was a blond, fat, homely man, George Monk by name.

Benedict Arnold GENERAL MONK tried to sell his country to its old-time masters. He failed. History has forever cursed him with the brand of "Traitor." George Monk tried to do practically the same thing. He succeeded. He was loaded down with wealth and honors and hailed as a Liberator.

When Monk was a lad of seventeen—in 1625—he broke the laws of England and had to flee for refuge to the continent. He had not much money, but he had boundless ambition, not enough conscience to trouble him, and a veritable genius for military affairs. All this was a splendid equipment for a soldier of fortune. And a soldier of fortune he became. He went to the wars in Spain, and later in the Netherlands, where he quickly won high reputation as a crafty and fearless warrior.

Monk fell foul of the Dutch authorities in 1638 and went back to England. By this time his early lawlessness was forgotten and he was made a colonel in the armies of King Charles I. A short time afterward he helped to crush an uprising, first in Scotland, then in Ireland, and by his stern conduct there won still further the approval of Charles.

Parliament rose against the king and civil war began. Monk was suspected—rightly or otherwise—of being a secret friend of the rebels and was arrested. But he so loudly protested his love for the king and his abhorrence for the Parliamentary party that Charles freed him and reinstalled him in the army. Monk fought gallantly for the king, but in 1644 was captured by the parliament troops and cast into prison. There he remained for three years.

In the meantime Parliament won the war. The Royalist forces were routed. King Charles was a captive and was soon to lose his head. The Parliamentary army needed good officers. Monk was offered freedom, fat bribes and a generalship if he would renounce King Charles and swear loyalty to Parliament. He consented. One side was as good as another to him so long as it promised him advancement. He was bound by no scruples. Says one historian:

"He had but one interest, that of George Monk! And to secure that interest he labored."

Monk rose high in the Parliamentary service and at last was second in command to Oliver Cromwell himself. This did not satisfy him. No cunning or skill of his could prevail over Cromwell's iron nature. But Cromwell—who never wholly trusted him—was not immortal. And Monk could afford to wait. He quietly strengthened his influence over the army, laid his plans and bided his time.

Cromwell was ruler of "the commonwealth of England," using the title "Lord Protector" instead of "King," because the people were sick of royalty. He died and his son Richard—a weak, stupid fellow—succeeded him. In less than a year Richard was deposed. And England was practically without a ruler. The Cromwell party wanted one thing, other factions wanted another. It was the time of uncertainty for which Monk had waited.

The eldest son of King Charles I. was living on the continent. For years he had vainly sought to regain his father's throne. But the people at large were afraid to trust him. Agents of his had approached Monk, and now came again to him. The balance of power lay in Monk's hands. And he played his cards well. He held out, it is said, for an enormous price. The terms being agreed upon, he quietly got about his task of earning the money.

First he weeded out of the army all who were likely to object actively to the restoration of the old monarchy. He filled the highest military offices with Royalists and forced parliament to receive numbers of the dead king's old adherents. All this time he was loudly proclaiming his loyalty to the "Commonwealth" and his hatred of kings.

When the hour was ripe he deserted to the Royalist standard and took his whole army with him. With the army and Monk on the side of Charles I.'s son, and parliament "packed" with Royalists, the commonwealth could do nothing but feebly lament the treachery that had caused its fall.

The young king (now known as Charles II.) came to London unopposed and began a reign of profligacy.

Monk was hailed as a hero and a deliverer. Charles II. made him duke of Albemarle, gave him a pension of $35,000 a year and appointed him commander-in-chief of the English army.
